

What is your name and major?
What are you looking forward to this week?

Jess ME - going to a cider mill this week :)

Julia, ME

Karen, BME

Dillon, Aerospace
Engineering

Taeksang, CEE

Cary EE

Frank, CS

Danny
CS

Is it viable to outsource the website to a third party?

maybe find CS students?

What features should we prioritize?

Anything you'd like to see changed?

prioritize website NOT CRASHING during general meetings bigger/more noticeable sign in button

Keep the electee point tracker feature but eliminate all the unnecessary status columns, seems like really only 1 is needed

Reduce scrolling

updates to home page - pictures are pretty outdated better organized event filters, like with folders/subfolders expand shifts tab on event list page without needing to click on the event

We think it is viable. Career fair funding can definitely cover the cost of outsourcing the site

Make the gcal easier to get to. 1 gcal for actives & 1 for electees

It would be better to use graphic design.

also if possible make it so people can add the TBP calendar to their personal gcal separate portal for members/electees that doesn't have so many tabs, just enough for us to access our info and events

Nicely formatted and compact calendar on the homepage to quickly see upcoming events

Better design/formatting to easily see separate sections on homepage.

What is your name and major?
What are you looking forward to this week?

Sergio Q, BME, looking forward to the weekend/getting done with this busy week

Nathan
Montgomery - ME
Major, looking forward to enjoying the weekend with friends

Vance K, ME - looking forward to the first Symphony
Band concert

Is it viable to outsource the website to a third party?

What features should we prioritize?

Anything you'd like to see changed?

Yes it should be viable, could have some CS students to do it as a personal project

Capacity upgrades would be welcome, particularly so that large events function more smoothly

Have a calendar or grid layout for events and hide past events, rather than using the annoying full list of all events in chronological order

make menu have larger font, more visibility

Homepage could be a more polished page dedicated to explaining TBP and its mission, rather than a collage of news/events/etc

Have options for default homepage add-ons once you log-in to your profile

e.g., a list of events you've signed up for

What is your name and major?
What are you looking forward to this week?

Sirawit Shimpalee, NAME, looking forward to my autocad lab Friday

Aaron Villiger - Mechanical Engineering major, looking forward to being finished with my job interview I have tomorrow

Toland Corum, Computer Science. Looking forward to finishing my eecs project

Yunseok - aerospace eng. getting my gsi paycheck at the end of the month

Yuhao Wang, Nuclear engineering

Is it viable to outsource the website to a third party?

What features should we prioritize?

Anything you'd like to see changed?

Paying the third party would not be good if an cheaper solution is already available

Outsourcing could work, but would it not be better to get TBP members to create it themselves?

Main problem is the sign in system that crashes. can we use google form or something to do the sign in?

Photos on the information page could be more up-to-date, it would also be nice to have a shared album for people to upload event photos

Website has more functionality than I've seen in some of my previous organizations, but sometimes hard to find what you're looking for Sometimes tough to parse through events list. Might be able to set up a Google calendar for the club so it is directly integrated rather than adding each event to member's calendars.

Website speed and ease of use should be prioritized on the new website

Who created the website in the first place? If we wanted to implement changes ourselves, would it be more effort than starting from scratch?

What is your major?
What are you looking forward to?

Jon - CSE - Iowa Game

Steven - Aerospace - Hanging out with Friends

Lynn Jegal - CSE; finishing up a math project

Aidan Goettsch - Computer Engineering - Looking forward to finishing up some interviews

Ayan - 3rd Year PhD ME - Nothing

Harkirat - PhD - BME - Sleeping

Yash - PhD ECE - Meeting an old friend

John Pye - Aero/CE Junior

Xhulja-3rd Year PhD ME- Meeting the Members

Chirag - CSE - Reading

Is it viable to outsource the website to a third party?

Viable but tricky, need to be in control of website

Just host website to prevent crashes, but not redesign

Yes, maybe we can prioritize only few features to the third party if it becomes too expensive

We can probably pay students for development which might reduce the cost

Who does the university use to build its websites? Maybe can use them.

What features should we prioritize?

Make it easy to see current members, contact them

Q&A Board, easily accessible

Should be able to handle more traffic.

Make some kind of slack channel or integration for coordination

Currently the social links on the website do not work

Sometimes, the events on home page and the actual event capacity do not match

Anything you'd like to see changed?

Mobile App, or just make it more mobile-friendly

TBPlayground doesn't work properly

Increase accessibility to officers.

Streamline organization, make common links accessible

Improve UI; certain pages can be difficult to read or look a bit clustered

Improve/make more usable calendar integration

What is your name and major?
What are you looking forward to this week?

Denise Schlautman - MSE ; looking forward to Friday

Haimiti Atila CEE. Done with exams

Madison Kelberman-BME, looking forward to out of town friends visiting

Arjun Sundararajan, ME; the book tour I went to yesterday

Reese Liebman - CSE; looking forward to finishing a project!

Alex de la Iglesia, CS - I am looking forward to having my work done! (eventually)

If TBP was to lose its main revenue stream (the career fair), what alternate revenue sources should we pursue?

Should we make consistent donations to the TBP endowment fund, as a sort of rainy day fund?

ask alumni for donations day care/dog walking

Exam Tutoring (GRE, SAT, etc)

blackmail the dean (aka apply for CoE funding)

Could dedicate a minimum % of yearly spending to donating to the endowment

Monetize service events

Existing: company info sessions

Co-fundraise with another org (not SWE?) ask for corporate sponsorships crpyto to the moon

Make a paid STEM camp

What is your major?
What are your forward

Jon - CSE - Iowa Game

Steven - Aerospace - Hanging out with Friends

Ayan - 3rd
Year PhD
ME -
Nothing

Harkirat - PhD - BME - Sleeping

Yash - PhD ECE - Meeting an old friend

Chirag - CSE - Reading

If TBP was to lose its main revenue stream (the career fair), what alternate revenue sources should we pursue?

Should we make consistent donations to the TBP endowment fund, as a sort of rainy day fund?

Can we scale up K-12 events and get paid for it? I know kids already pay some amount for scout orgs

Scale up PD events; maybe offer food (company luncheons) to also increase participation

Can we organize activities for city and get funds from city council?

Use general meetings as an advertising channel (get sponsors for food and advertise them to our TBP members)?

What is your name and major?
What are you looking forward to this week?

Sergio Q, BME,
looking forward to the weekend/getting done with this busy week

Nathan Montgomery - ME Major, looking forward to enjoying the weekend with friends

Vance K, ME - looking forward to the first Symphony Band concert

If TBP was to lose its main revenue stream (the career fair), what alternate revenue sources should we pursue?

Should we make consistent donations to the TBP endowment fund, as a sort of rainy day fund?

Yes, if we have the $ then making rainy day donations to start a TBP fund is smart and can help resolve future $ issues

Alumni donations could partially make up for the loss of revenue

Could raise $ with fundraiser events such as selling food near holidays, can make for good service hour opportunity too

Corporate sponsorships may be worth pursuing

What is your name and major?
What are you looking forward
to this week?

If TBP was to lose its main revenue stream (the career fair), what alternate revenue sources should we pursue?

Should we make consistent donations to the TBP endowment fund, as a sort of rainy day fund?